

SMUGGLERS AND COINERS THE SPOOKS

Arrest of Gang Solves Mystery of "Haunted House" on Italian Frontier.

ROME, Sept. 15.—The population of Monreale, near Bellinzona, on the Italian frontier, has for months been in superstitious terror owing to the fact that a certain house is reputed to have been haunted.

Groans and clanking of chains have been heard at night, and skeleton faces have been seen at the windows. No one approached the place, and the houses in the vicinity were deserted.

The police have just solved the mystery by arresting a gang of coiners and smugglers near Milan. One of these has confessed that the haunted house was their stronghold, where the false money was manufactured and where stolen and smuggled goods were stored in safety.
